The Good Shepherd

Scripture Reference: Psalm 23 and 87

Lyrics

But the blood of Your son, I'm made whole	Hidden safe in Your arm, I find rest
By the breath in Your lungs, I'm living	With the sound of your voice, I hear You
Everywhere that I go, You're with me	Though the choice is still open, to stray away
With Your rod and Your staff, You lead me, You lead me	I know that my heart cannot settle, for anything but You, I just need You
You forget my sins, but You know my name	This one was born here, this one belongs here, I hear You say
Written on Your hands, and Yours is on my face
And You count the stars, like You count who belong in Zion	I'm not worthy You

Prompt:

Read both chapters: Psalm 23 and 87

Ask The Good Shepherd to count you with His rod and search for any blemish that keeps you from being made whole. Give those unwanted areas to Him and watch Him mend you.

Then ask Him to use His staff to keep you in His flock, in His Holy City, as His lamb, child, and heir.

As you dwell on the Good Shepherd and King, write down what He is speaking to you now, and where He is longing to take you.
